It is true that a lot of abhyasis could go to India but do not do it, for the sake of convenience. They do not have enough motivation to make this effort. They want to advance, but quietly, without investing themselves in depth. For them, the notion of effort and sacrifice is not taken into consideration. They put a good many other priorities before their spiritual progress. We cannot urge them to do what they don't really want to do; it is sad but that's the way it is.

"The time for each of you is short; every day that passes can represent an opportunity lost to take a step in the right direction.

"As regards some people, a flash will probably light in them, which will make them take the right decisions. Some actions are within the reach of a good many people, but they don't take the trouble to act.

"As the years go by, one comes across the same people again, devoted and convinced, who do their level best for what they consider to be the most important thing in life. We encourage those brothers and sisters to pursue in this direction, which will lead them to the expected results."
