

Tuesday, November 14, 2000 - 10:00 AM

Your world is fraught with temptations. They watch you all the time. It is not easy to resist one's own tendencies; we all have struggled against ours. Learning about life is not possible without making mistakes. To some extent, they build the human being, if they are restricted to acceptable limits and are a lesson to him.

"The being becomes refined, both gradually and from life to life, until he reaches a stage where the soul's appeal becomes urgent. Then his quest for the Absolute begins. By degrees, he meets the aspirations of his Self that urges him to act. How many lives will be necessary to fulfil it?

"By admitting his mistakes and trying to remedy them, the human being fosters his progress. This long perspective can be enriching, it is you who enliven it and ensure through your reactions that your life scenery changes. You can shed different lights on it, those related to love, all forms of beauty, and abnegation.

"It is quite a palette, rich and colourful, that will embellish your inner space, give you strength, strength capable of moving the mountains of the mind."

Babuji