Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, November 8, 1998 – 10:30 a.m.

We are satisfied with 'your work'. You have yet a long way to go, but 'the way' is wide, now. It remains for you to continue in that way. Be well surrendered, for what we expect of you. You know there is a lot to do in the ashram for it to become this beacon in the heart of the city, as we have already mentioned. Our aspirants do not practice enough, except for a few. Modern life does not encourage contemplation, even among the most gifted; a thousand temptations divert them from the goal. Each one must be given time to become aware of his or her potential and of the grandeur of this 'way'. It leads to the highest level, if practiced with heart, faith and perseverance. Sahaj Marg is a great flow of purity, which, one day, will refresh the world. Continue my child, with ardour; time is counted, make efforts. We are with you. We bless you. I will come back.
