Friday, December 29, 2000 - 10:00 AM

The Atlantis civilization was very advanced, much more than yours. When it was engulfed, vast expanses of land were dislocated to become continents, as you currently know them. This planet underwent very many upheavals before getting into its current configuration. Some more upheavals will take place: it is inevitable.

"That is part of the great movement, which governs the structure of the universe, and in addition to which (as far as the Earth is concerned) there is incredible contempt with which men having a destructive instinct treat elements that make it up. They are not unaware of the serious dangers in which they put humanity, but they continue to move forward in that race for power, primarily their own power subordinated to money power. Others devote their intelligence and action to their brothers, and thus, the balance of values tentatively takes place. We let you think about that issue in this end of the year when the prospects for peace in certain parts of the world don't look exactly cheerful. As for you, cultivate in your hearts this powerful strength that is love, to counterbalance the forces of evil."

Babuji