The assumption formulated by these authors is right. They were cosmonauts, and not gods, who came in old times and appeared to Abraham, then to Moses to help the Earthmen and to make them move forward; but progress is slow on the Earth. Extraterrestrial civilizations are developed to such a point that you cannot even figure out. About 20,000 years ago, or more, when humans saw such evolved beings, they could only consider them as gods. In the next century, they will return in great number to subdue the fury of men who are capable of blowing up the planet with means that they control so badly. It will be necessary to calm things down and to admit that a superior people must take over the controls to restore, with time, peace on the Earth. Then, harmony will prevail among men and will foster their spiritual evolution. They will understand finally, that religions were lures, which they accepted for want of anything better, as their degree of evolution does not allow them to distinguish truth from falsehood.

"There is a time for everything. Great upheavals are necessary to make things move forward. There will be many tragedies. One will need to be strong to survive; but God will enlighten the men of goodwill. The golden age will not take place overnight. It is the law of evolution that prevails on the Earth and elsewhere. Don't worry, carry on your way as well as possible in the purity of heart; it's the true treasure. What must be, will be!

"Pray, be united in love and brotherhood. Meditate on this well."
