Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Saturday, March 24, 2001 - 10:00 a.m.

Death as you call it is in reality a rebirth. Another form of life continues elsewhere. This continuity is enriched by the many Earthly experiments which constitute a significant step of a being's evolution. So many lessons are learnt from an incarnation and experiments that are seen as good or bad as per the meaning they are given by life and its evaluation criteria. Their actual value lies elsewhere and has to be assessed through standards not designed by men. What seems appalling to you can turn out to be very instructive and enriching.

"This is why wisdom suggests that man should accept the tribulations of life and its varied ordeals as blessings.

"He generally makes this observation while taking stock of his incarnation, after having left the Earth. Reality appears to him, in its entire truth. He consequently remains astounded. At the end of the day, this life that is so painful sometimes proves to be an exemplary enrichment. Your assessment on this aspect leaves a lot to be desired.

"Be confident, nothing happens to you without reason. Only innate or acquired wisdom will enable you to appreciate."
