Saturday, April 21, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

Do not worry about this health problem. It is not new – it was just not identified.

In medicine, the diagnosis is the most important point; current knowledge is far from grasping everything and being capable of curing disorders when they are diagnosed. Take heart, my dear daughter, a solution will be found to bring you some well-being.

Many of your fellow beings are suffering from thyroid problems which generally are not identified. The intense pollution prevailing in this world is in large part the cause, one of the major reasons being the radioactive fallout.

On another point which upsets you – the denunciatory campaign against the Mission in France – it is good to adopt a state of mind allowing a greater interiorisation and to let the storm blow over, even if it is likely to last. This state of affairs should encourage the development of new practices in the manifestation of faith and the means of living it as a group. That will require another behaviour which will need to be adapted to the occasion.

Better times will come again, driving out all these miasmas.

Nature is a good example of surrender: it must resign itself to bad weather.

We have said it before: the biggest religious or spiritual paths have encountered problems throughout the centuries. We do not escape the rule with the situation in this country.

One will need to wait and hope for better days when the Mission in France will again be lent credibility and will be able to pursue its expansion; it cannot be otherwise. You may all remain confident.

Babuji