A Third Revelation

You can find more detailed explanations than ours in this book[1]. We cannot provide such descriptions; such is not our aim. We do not find it vitally important to expound to you the reality about the creation of the current world. Our aspirants, those actually willing to make an effort to read us, will have so many elements to assimilate about their own evolution that we do not need to dwell any further on details – which, however important, are irrelevant in this context.

"With the passage of time, we clarify some key points likely to help you in your comprehension of the universal plan and its impacts at the human level.

"All these complicated concepts (for the great majority) would not add value to our main objective of helping you in your spiritual process – which to us is the most important [objective]. Intellectual curiosity can be satisfied with other readings; there are many of them which are almost sound, whereas many are to be excluded from your choice. Avoid cluttering your mind with intellectual digressions that may distract you from your true search; only it is rewarding."
