Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Monday, August 27, 2001 - 8:00 a.m.

My dear daughter, you are regaining stature. Step by step, you are climbing up the path, moulded by its harshness and pitfalls arising here and there. Look towards the horizon; never lose sight of this reference point that makes you move forward. Look at the purity of the sky; see how light and appealing it is. Let your heart sing its joy; may it remain in spite of everything – this joy, which will perhaps suffuse the heart of our brothers when they read us. It is essential in a spiritual process. One who is sad and weary should be able to stand up for oneself and strongly appeal to their God and be united with Him, which is just what He is waiting for. Isn't love the only possible remedy for all sorts of evil?

"On no account can sadness, resentment, and even hatred help you. Make an effort to go beyond these conditions, if you happen to succumb to them. Try to turn the page when an unpleasant situation torments you, and make the necessary decisions while praying that you be well inspired and guided. You are never alone; do not neglect this faithful presence, which accompanies you on this long path. You should recognise it in all circumstances and not only when everything is going wrong.

"Give it the best place in your heart; this recognition will make you finally be aware of this divine life in you."
