I am here, my child. Think of the running river, it goes inexorably towards the ocean. The infinite is its destination. Who can stop its course—a huge dam as can be seen on certain rivers, or reservoirs, less apparent but insidious and polluting? The natural course of events is changed. Men are playing with the elements, with water, but also with the entire creation. The human cell has become their large field of exploration. Scientists want to modify everything, transform and even create; they like to think they are gods. It's dangerous for the becoming of the planet.

"On your level, the purpose of our work and our teaching is to help you to remove the barriers that are in you and that hinder your spiritual evolution. On no account do we want to be directive, repressive or any other thing of the sort. You came in this way to advance, to progress towards what you foresee as redemptive for your human condition. It is a great project, sumptuous in terms of its goal when it is achieved.

"The motivations of our work have nothing to do with what happens in various religions; by no means do we want to exert any control on you, [we] only [intend] to free you of your chains. The difference is big. Maybe our program can seem too heavy for some people who are not ready to go further, or whose constitution is fragile. We do not want to force anybody. We only wish the blooming of each one of you in accordance with your capabilities. You should actually become aware of this. Should a father not worry about his children and their good? Is he a tyrant for that? To wish one's loved ones well is a great intention. You should know that we wish to see you advancing towards light, strong, determined, well with yourselves in faith and love.

"Be surrendered in the face of what is happening on the Earth. Mind your own life; do your level best with it and with that of your loved ones. Help your brother as far as you can. You never advance alone. Some need a helping hand to help them carry their burden. Make sure that your acts and your words reflect the work being done in your heart. Cultivate purity, as a rare plant is cultivated, with love. Understand well what purity is. It summarizes the best aspects of your nature, all your noble-heartedness.

"We trust in you, our brothers, our associates. We want to lead you onto summits, which you cannot imagine; it would take your breath away. That's all we want for you. It is our great project in this Mission that was all our life on the Earth and which will know no end. We will carry on; we will continue to work in this direction for the good of you all. If you find this program in your reach, then you will advance together with our assistance and all our blessings."
