Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Monday, September 10, 2001 - 10:00 a.m.

Man's credulity is such that it is touching. He believes he is the master of the universe at the pinnacle of glory and defying the laws governing its mechanisms. Nothing stops him; his destructive impulses apply in what he considers as his own rights. Humans, who are more enlightened than the majority of their fellow creatures on the origins of Earthlings, are misunderstood, and even persecuted.

"Man's foolish arrogance knows no limit. The laws in force, deeply anchored in the utmost ignorance about the creation of humanity, are pathetic. Religions perpetuated misconceptions and this is nowhere near changing; minds as a whole are not mature enough to admit the truth. It is easier to revel in this web of misconceptions; man does not like to be rushed with regards to what he believes is the truth.

"The pioneers of the new world, which is in the making, will have to strive unrelentingly to supplant old concepts, erroneous and groundless. It is not always easy to have a different opinion from the multitude, but times will come when the veracity of our comments will prove true."
