Saturday, September 29, 2001 - 7:30 AM

My dear son,

"Do not be so anxious. Why should you? Remain surrendered to the divine guidance that is yours. Don't worry. When the moment comes, the chosen one will come towards you and all will be well.

"Looking forward to that, you have made provision for everything as best you could. Everything doesn't move as quickly as human beings would want them to do, though powerful they may be in terms of prerogatives. This wait is necessary for a serious setting up. We cannot give a name for the time being; it would be premature.

"Have confidence in us; the destiny of your successor is all mapped out. Nothing will be easy for him, but this is how things are. He should take up a hard challenge and he will emerge victorious from it, like you yourself did, my dear son. That is the way it has been decided.

"You have done nothing wrong; continue as much as possible in serenity. You have laid firm foundations, the outline is all mapped out, the Mission will go on come hell or high water and in spite of big unrest threatening this world. Its status is well established and strong; believe me. Our way will enlighten human beings of the future.

"What must be, will be. Do what you must do and especially what you can. We are more than ever close to you in these difficult times for your health.

"Remain confidant, my dear son, we all love you so much."

Babuji Maharaj