Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Wednesday, October 3, 2001 - 8:30 a.m.

My child, one should better see the vicissitudes of life as they are and stand up to them, equipped with the strength provided by faith. Behaving outwardly like a good soldier is the best means of acting, and then one should withdraw within oneself and relish the divine presence, as a true mystic can do. In these moments, this peace again gives strength to continue to live, but also to love more and more. Love distilled by a pure heart is an enigma. Which sacred alchemy creates it? What are its sources? Where does it emanate from? It must be experienced to the full without asking oneself too many questions; one should simply consider that it is a grace and that, as such, there are no rational explanations.

"You asked me to speak about love, to make you glide over this world, but love is everywhere and in everything. It is enough to cultivate it, to see it where it is hidden, to keep it alive in oneself in a constant way, and then it is diffused like the light of a lamp, the range of which seems un-assessable. Love endlessly, my child; sing this love and the echo will be reflected beyond the confines of time."
