Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Saturday, October 6, 2001 - 10:00 a.m.

My dear daughter, you are giving your best to serve us by devoting a large part of your energy to this work.

"Texts that marked humanity, many of which still remain in this century, are the result of highly inspired writings. Prophets also were inspired. They left to the world a teaching full of common sense and love. Religions, in their turn, got hold of them and created all their own specific rules based on this fundamental framework. Men added on to it what they believed would serve a right cause, by working out a whole system which differentiates them from each other.

"Every religion has its good points; sectarianism results from views limited to groups that appropriate this teaching by interpreting it and distorting it. What they add on to it exceeds the framework of the initial teaching, which spoke only about justice, brotherhood and compassion.

"Wisdom is not as widespread on Earth as it should be. If these great missioned people were listened to and followed scrupulously, humanity would not be in a critical and dismaying phase, as is currently the case. May the heart of men change and open finally to divine reality."
