Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Sunday, October 14, 2001 - 10:00 a.m.

Did I not already tell you that who I am does not matter! Anybody's history is long and prolific. What good would it do us going back in time and getting lost in the maze of our multiple incarnations? Such is not our objective; let us go beyond this legitimate curiosity that would make us ride the wings of time backwards and think of other lives that left traces, but which do not serve our purpose today. We fell down; we stood up – more than once. Although we had ourselves gone past this stage, we understand men and their ceaseless fight against tendencies that make them stumble. Who, among us, did not experience all that? The goodwill of your fellow creatures moves us and urges us to perpetually help them.

"The time of sublime glory will come. We are, all of us, working towards it and you are, each one of you, doing your level best. Let us remain enthusiastic about the becoming of humanity, which one day will stop fighting against itself and will open its eyes to the realities of a system that can only lead it to its ruin. Love will end up prevailing; this will take a lot of time, but its power is such that it can overcome anything. It is the great hope of all of us. Let us unite and appeal to it with all our heart."
