Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Saturday, December 1, 2001 - 8:30 a.m.

My dear daughter, do not consider this life on the Earth as a heavy exile; it is rich in many respects. Throughout life, man can acquire titles of nobility, unexchangeable ones.

"An incarnation is a voyage, more or less long as per needs. One has to see it for what it is and consider it as an initiatory step far from one's fatherland. It is up to each one to ensure that it is enlightening.

"It takes time for man to see life from this angle. We wish to insist on this aspect to help our aspirants overcome the difficulties standing in the way they are advancing and to make them become aware, little by little, of the frailty of their existence and the need for progressing.

"Admitting it is one thing, experiencing it inwardly with full gratitude is another one.

"In the face of difficulties, it is not easy to accept the fact that the goal of life is to be able to overcome tests. Certain great saints not only admitted it, but they also asked for them as graces.

"Before arriving at such greatness, acceptance is enough. It is not easy to acquire and live in utmost detachment.

"This force comes with time and with the elevation of the soul that is focused on the prospect of reaching the ultimate goal."
