Saturday, February 2, 2002 - 10:00 AM

The celebration of this birthday makes me happy. All my love for my Revered Great Master is carried by this commemoration, which should be maintained, so that the memory of his coming illuminates the hearts of our candidates.

"Love between Master and disciple cannot be explained and understood, except if one comes closer to a similar relation, divinely inspired.

"It is all of the history of our Mission, which should be kept. It won't end with this time, and it is good to remember its first founding steps by placing it in the context of that time. There is a world of difference between them and life as it is currently. All has changed: human beings in terms of their habits, mentalities and respect towards the Divine.

"Ways like ours maintain a spirit that fosters the spiritual quest and show its importance in this life troubled and devoid of moral sense. It is good that human beings keep up an esoteric tradition, the only one that will be able to help them and save them from the collapse that humanity is heading for. True values remain unchanged. He—God—doesn't change, whatever the climate that will be established here below. He will remain the only real shelter and possible recourse, for men of good sense."

Babuji