To my son,

"The light that is appearing in you, concerning your successor, is the good one, my dear son. You may go in that direction, we encourage you there.

"The worry that has been weighing heavily on you since a long time, will soon be removed from you. It had to take a good many years to attain this outcome. We could not attain it earlier; so many criteria are to be considered in this matter. That we had to make a temporary choice, only to reassure you, was not feasible. What is at stake is very important. What the Mission will be in fifty years from now will not anymore be like what it is today. It will be established, over the years, in all regions of the world, and administration, at such a level of achievement, will present a lot of difficulties that will have to be managed through adequate structures. Constraints will go hand in hand with the extension of the movement: it is in the nature of things.

"My dear son, proceed carefully in this project. Your successor remains a human being not well accustomed to the tour de force, which a spiritual Master has to accomplish at such a level.

"Your exemplary wisdom will see to it by opening his eyes, little by little, on what being responsible for the Mission is all about. We are completely with you, and full of admiration for your achievement and your inner strength, that permits you to start up again in the most difficult situations, while following your common sense.

"Be blessed, my son, oh so much! Multiple help opportunities come to your assistance and prepare a more serene future for you. You have our approval and love."
