You can see that it is not difficult to forward this kind of message to my son. You have a rare gift, my dear daughter, and you remain entrenched behind this humility of yours. In such circumstances, it should not block you to this extent. This channel is precious to us; you are kind enough to reserve it for us by protecting yourself from external pollution. This confinement, due to your ordeals, weighs on you, but in your heart an inalterable flame is burning, which you dedicate to us.

"It is precious in our eyes; do not fear to show it. As we have already said, a high level spiritual Master is a lonely being. He is special and must comply with the rules of this world. His load is heavy, going far beyond his specific role and the management of the ashrams in the world. In spite of being open to spirituality, men are mere human beings grappling with their weaknesses and tendencies that need managing. This aspect is not the least; it generates many more worries than those inherent with material needs. From now on, he will feel less lonesome; he will understand that our love can be expressed in many ways, including where he could not expect it."
