Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Tuesday, March 26, 2002 - 10:00 a.m.

So many signs are shown to humans, to which they often do not pay attention, however which have some importance for the remainder of their existence. The Ancients were more observant, less caught in the swirl of the troubled life led by your contemporaries. They knew how to decipher events, however insignificant they were. This civilisation does not encourage man to interiorise himself, to look at himself thoroughly, to see the signs in the sky and on the Earth around him and in relation to his fellow man. Noise, and the amount of information of all sorts which reach him, generally destabilise him. He loses his identity in this prolific society. Only a return to more wisdom will save humanity caught in this swirl, which unsettles it. Man will have to revert to true values and put up with a better-balanced life, to again find the true meaning he must give it. A behavioural step for change will have to take place to reach this stage. A complete change of parameters will have to occur for him to make a fresh start, since by himself man cannot truly change society."
