Sunday, June 2, 2002 - 10:00 AM

When times have come, and if abhyasis are willing to take the trouble to read those messages, at least the 'Reflections,' a bit every day, that will help them in their progress. There is matter for it in the diversity of topics that are mentioned therein. It is good that practice be fed on suitable reading. We wrote books to that purpose, and with those messages, they are provided with another means of accessing not very common teachings relating to sensitive points of their spiritual being.

"There is everything necessary in the Mission: our way has a living Master of a particular stature who gets through a titanic work. All works together towards our candidates finding what best meets their expectations. They don't fully value how lucky they are to follow such a movement. At the dawn of this century, a new world is underway, specifying the picture of the future era that is taking shape. Minds are going to evolve at a surprising speed. The balance of this century that has just begun, will resemble that of a planet unknown to today's man. They won't have time to know it, but they have time, from now on, to benefit from what the present time offers them."

Babuji