Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Wednesday, June 12, 2002 - 8:00 a.m.

Look at this gleaming dawn on the horizon; it is only a low intensity ray, but it foreshadows the light of the future, of a distant future, but which will spread across the Earth. Man's molecular constitution will be different, divested of dross that entrench it to the lowest layers. Man's mind will be refined by that; it will rise in the hierarchy of the worlds. Your 'scientists' have yet to make discoveries that will leave them astounded. Not even one thousandth of the universal architecture is accessible to today's knowledge. New leavens are currently established in the human race; these remarks are likely to surprise people; we cannot go any further at the risk of being misunderstood and considered as insane. Despite all appearances that are not very encouraging about the human race as it stands today, there is hope for it, just like this gleam that is dawning in the sky, for the well-informed hearts that can see beyond appearances. The future world will have infinite resources, which it will utilise according to plans already foreseen."
