Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Monday, June 24, 2002 - 8:00 a.m.

A poet has said, 'Nobody knows himself until he has suffered'. Suffering highlights certain aspects of the personality, but can man really recognise himself while in the tribulations of his existence? No, since this knowledge is limited to the current life, a limited one. What is the truth of the being hiding behind a face – given a momentary incarnation? Nobody knows it among men. The soul keeps its mystery for those who cannot decipher it. In one's current incarnation, each plays the role assigned without, most fortunately, trying to know the previous one, which would only give melancholy, remorse or regrets. Each life is self-sufficient; it offers all the possibilities that enable man to rise and acquire a better status. Will man manage sooner or later to make the essential choices? He is never condemned in advance, quite the contrary; he can actually grow, since grace can help him.

"God in His mercy and His great kindness can provide for it."
