Whispers from The Brighter World

Christian teaching is so deeply rooted in people's minds – even among non-practicants – that it is difficult to state certain truths, including to abhyasis.

It is a whole legend that was created with the passing of centuries around the teachings of the Master [Jesus], which, if they were followed in all their rigour, could transform humanity.

Your women friends are not ready to adhere to this way of seeing. Certain ideas are tenacious and, moreover, not easy to understand with your reference points and limited view of things.

They belong to your culture; that is not important, insofar as they do not curb your evolution.

Let things come, be content to write what we are telling you.

One day, the curtain will rise and reality will be obvious. Minds will open up and put things into perspective, distinguishing truth from falsehood.

There will be many disillusionments regarding religions.

One must let time do its work.

Think of what it cost you to open your eyes.

The end of this century should leave behind it a certain number of erroneous beliefs.
