Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Monday, July 8, 2002 - 10:00 a.m.

Life will be able to change on the Earth only by dint of great transformations, which modify the current aspects that characterise it. Man will have to adapt to the pervading environment, as well as to new and strict rules concerning his way of being. He will have to comply with stringent requirements. He will have no option; the laws will impose rigorous discipline on him. This is how man of the future will have to evolve: by refraining from endangering the balance of this planet, as well as its near and remote environment. He will have to adapt by respecting not only the latter, but also his human brothers, subjected to a very different type of life from the current one. The regeneration of the race will only take place by dint of it. This change will inevitably entail important mutations. Mankind will not be able to adapt indefinitely to the state of ignominy that the world is currently experiencing. The Almighty will put an end to it when He deems it opportune."
