Tuesday, July 9, 2002 - 10:00 a.m.

There are very beautiful love stories between Master and disciple. Look at ours, between Revered Lalaji and myself. I used to see him in spirit in everything; my words and my actions were inspired by his [spirit]. We were in osmosis, completely united spiritually, our hearts being only as one. Nothing is too beautiful for the Beloved one; such a love helps to push oneself to the limits, to try to do everything possible to satisfy him. I have set an example of these extraordinary bonds to my son, which united me with His Divine Greatness. Thus is transmitted the torch in these great families of souls united for the good of humanity. Love at this level is the strongest bond; it is indestructible and makes it possible to achieve great things. The divine love is the driving force of the world; its power can neither be assessed nor be described humanly. Love your Master, my child. See in him the representative of the supreme forces serving God and mankind, since such is your destiny. Let your heart grow in your faith in him. Place it above all. You should have faith in him; we are working for the good of mankind."

Babuji