According to what we have just mentioned, there remains enormous work to be done on this Earth, but this fight is not futile, quite the contrary. A very remote future, but a glorious one, will crown the efforts of each one. This prospect must encourage you to work towards its achievement. All that is done for a right cause partakes of a special system meant to help the forces that are working towards this imposing end. The golden age will come together with advanced beings populating this Earth, all working so that the divine intentions are achieved and structured towards infinity, in this architecture of the universe. All the positive forces – whatever their level – are busy operating with a precise aim: to serve the greatness of God, the creator of all things. You should feel more and more concerned with these noble projects; imagine yourself working for a great and beautiful cause, completely surrendered to a higher will, capable of transforming the world. You will never be alone again, even if you were isolated or stranded on a desert island, since you will belong to this big family in the service of the divine power."
