Friday, August 9, 2002 - 8:00 a.m.

I am here, my child. I can hear your heart that calls me; it suffers from being far from us. Time has not come for you to leave this world, thus is the case for humans who must pursue their evolutionary cycle on the Earth. We support you in this fight. We follow your steps and, thanks to these contacts, we can express our love for you and show our brothers that they are not alone in this struggle where they must face the ill effects of ignorance. Think of all those beings who suffer, and who also endure, while continuing to live often under deplorable conditions. You pray for the multitude in distress; never stop doing so, it [distress] is direr than you can imagine."

Babuji