You can see that your role is not negligible. You must overcome this crisis and start to enjoy striving again; don't you have good reasons for that? What you are living is exceptional. You are not fully aware of your luck; all is natural to you, whereas very few human beings live such an experience. We are here in a special field; what you are doing is far from being understood by a majority of individuals, but that does not matter since you are doing it well, and that is what is important. This capability of yours is not known, as it should be; your gifts are rather rare, this is worth underlining. People who understand it are ahead of their time. The others have blinkers; they confuse charlatanism and esoteric reality.

"Let us leave the ignoramuses stuck to their ideas; we work for the others, who are well informed about this kind of perception. You are special, my daughter; don't jib at writing it. We know your reservations about being in the limelight; yet you have to, and please don't keep this message to yourself. People in your circle are convinced, and especially, so is my son. He does not make light of what comes through your channel, and it has been so for a long time. He knows, and is that not the main thing? Don't worry about the rest; these messages will go their way at the appropriate time. They will soar, actually, and they will have regular readers.

"My son will be able to do the needful to prepare the ground. Continue as much as you can; you are our privileged messenger. You have a special place in the Mission and it suits you. Serving us with a heart full of love is your best tool. Be blessed, as well as all those who understand you and help you on your difficult path."
