Sunday, September 15, 2002 - 10:00 a.m.

You see what a profound meditation can bring about; is there any equivalent happiness here below? The answer is in your heart. Only it can answer. Uniting with God in this way is the best thing that can happen to man. Remain in this vibration, my child; keep it in you, preciously, like a priceless treasure. Divest yourself of negative aspects; control your thoughts constantly, don't allow them to darken your life any more. Try to create within yourself a permanent climate of beauty. Let your heart delight in the sublime presence. How could we not revert indefinitely to what is essential in a mystic: the sacred character of this inward union with the divinity?

"When this point is reached in one's search, one starts feeling bliss, and it requires careful maintenance. It takes precedence over all. Do not forget it; it is about your eternity. Your tangible properties – if you have any – will be soon forgotten when you have left your physical body. As for this ultimate wealth that grows in you, it will accompany you. It is your priority. Don't forget it. We don't ask you to neglect your Earthly business, far from it. Only make sure that a kingly place is devoted to what is essential and will accompany you wherever you will go beyond this life.

"Try more and more to maintain within yourself the sacred flame, and keep well this treasure that is immutable and invisible to men's eyes. No one can take it away from you or make you give up maintenance of it."

Babuji