reserve this peace at all costs; it is essential in the face of the torments of life. What you have acquired is precious and deserves to be safeguarded. Isolate yourself as often as possible in this preserved island. Continue your quest in search of new treasures; they are innumerable to those who actually take the trouble to do so. God is most important; all the remainder is illusory, and you know it. We will not insist any more; take rest and keep us present in your mind. We bless you."
