Whispers from The Brighter World
A Third Revelation

Friday, October 25, 2002 - 10:00 a.m.

We have good reasons to continue to give you these messages. They will be variously appreciated. Where some readers will see only repetitions in our remarks, others will recognise that these very repetitions raise their awareness little by little, thus transforming their spiritual process. These writings will not please everyone, but which reading can? Our aspirants come from different backgrounds, from cultures or religions that laid their individual foundations on which their current frame of mind was built. The main thing for all is the work being carried out in them through their practice, which prepares them for a mostly convincing spiritual progress. It will then be high time to perfect this work, with suitable contributions. Many ways lead to the source, some being more direct than others, but all, inevitably, converge. The length of the path has more than one raison d'être; there is so much diversity among men that it is logical for the same to be found in their approach to such a process. In our way, the practice is very well adapted to each aspirant who advances at his own pace. How could it be otherwise? Only the end result will unify this work as a whole. Time is the best ally of all; perseverance being the strength of the motivated abhyasi who will reap the fruits of his work."
