Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Saturday, January 11, 2003 - 10:00 a.m.

Life on Earth is so transient. When will men understand it and have more compassion for their brothers? This fierceness in harming others is a root difficult to extirpate from certain hearts that do not want to understand or hear anything. We once again revert to this aspect of humanity that is deep-rooted. That reinforces us in our determination to help the souls that only await the chosen guide to evolve. Everything urges us to act accordingly. Choosing our way is an indication of the pressing need to advance towards other values, which are likely to show life from a different perspective.

"Each one has so much to do with his own life, and does not need to interfere in others', to see their faults and criticise them. His personal program being vast, it should be enough for him, as perfection cannot be obtained easily. Man is incorrigible; he can see what is wrong in others before realising that it is himself whom he sees in his brother. Forbearance is the first step on the path of transformation; perfection is the outcome of it. It will take time to get there. A spiritual process contributes to making it less arid. It helps to drop the blinkers, to realise that God is in every one and that humanity is as one. This large sick body must be regenerated by the power of the spirit; each one of you has his specific role in this vast undertaking, which is not futile. It is up to you to see and to commit yourself."
