Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Wednesday, January 22, 2003 - 10:00 a.m.

We all have had to manage what we were as incarnate beings. You are no exception to the rule; that is the way it goes.

"Each one has the opportunity to evolve according to what they are, making the most of their shortcomings and relying on their strong points. No one becomes incarnate into a perfect being, except for rare exceptions; these are divine secrets.

"Where would the challenge lie if man did not have to count on his own strengths to face up to adversity?

"Life holds a long succession of tests which one should go through and get out of with increased stature if possible.

"An accomplished spiritual process sheds new light on one's own resources. In our way, cleaning is at the root of the work that must be achieved on the aspirant, thus removing undesirable aspects likely to slow down the expected progress.

"This aspect is essential; one cannot truly build in a place that does not lend itself to it. It takes time to obtain the best, which occurs inevitably with an assiduous practice.

"All this you have known since you started as abhyasis, but it is worth repeating. Man, caught in the swirl of life, forgets his diversity, his movement, and he tends to forget what is essential to the true goal of his incarnation. Obtaining degrees, a good position, give, on the material level, an interesting social success and ground for one's development as a human being. Beside that, all the remainder has to be done, and you have understood it, you who chose our way. Wisdom has managed to inspire you. Be blessed."
