Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fourth Revelation

Sunday, January 26, 2003 - 10:00 a.m.

You are isolated from the outside world, but your spiritual life is rich and it largely compensates for any other aspect you may be lacking. While being in a state of acceptance, you polish the beautification of your inner life. This compensation is offered to you. You can be delighted and thankful; your path is not banal.

"The fruits of a well led spiritual life are most appreciable. They do not remain an asset related to this Earthly existence, hence subjected to sinking into oblivion.

"You have known all this for a long time already, but it is not superfluous to remind you.

"All our aspirants go through moments of lassitude. Faith does not remedy all evils; joy emerges from all these difficult periods, putting a balm on a wounded heart.

"Life is perpetual change, which affects man's mood. You, abhyasis, have the means through your practice to keep in your hearts a constant state, maintained by a transmission of subtle energy. The more you advance, the surer this refuge will become. You will be soundly protected from the attacks of time, storms, and upheavals prevailing in this world. You build yourselves an edifice which cannot be assailed by the upheavals caused by the vagaries of this Earthly existence. Only the growing flame in you must monopolise your attention. It accompanies you beyond this life, without undergoing any fluctuation. See to it to maintain it carefully; it is precious."
