You devote your strengths to submitting to this ritual. You do it out of love; this concept leads your life, since everything comes down to it.

"The previous message can only state a fact, it does not predict the end of the world, but it underlines realities that are a prelude to great evils for the Earth. It is inescapable. Men of goodwill only possess goodwill; they cannot dam up the evil when it is so perverse and virulent.

"Let us get over what corrodes part of humanity, and let us find refuge in what is essential for the many souls having got over the stage of ignorance, which prevails too much in this world. More luminous times will come after this storm in preparation, which could not probably be avoided; only God knows. All great souls are working to this end. The interest of humanity finally revealed to itself as far as its good aspect is concerned, i.e., the so badly understood Divine. All our sincere and motivated candidates abide by this luminous and great prospect for a world not grappling with the forces of evil. The great changes that are brewing should provide for it. They will not happen without difficulty, but the results should be commensurate with upheavals generated.

"All this will not come tomorrow. You should work for your own salvation, being conscious of the Divine and of your participation in these grand designs."
