

Friday, April 4, 2003 - 10:00 AM

Keep your feet on the ground in order to do what you have to, but get stronger in your spiritual progress to meet the appeal of your heart. That is what we can say to any researcher to strongly encourage them to follow their natural inclination concerning the appeal of the Divine. Many human beings repress this call for they cannot find the way that suits them, and they fear the big revealed movements whose power is repelling to them. This small inner voice, which tries to be heard, gradually raises itself and it ends up becoming pressing. It is then advisable to find what can be suitable, and to allow the soul to move towards the blossoming which it is longing for.

"Our candidates have this experience. As they are rushed in their daily life, they try to give more importance to this process, which becomes more and more visible with time. They are led to making choices and devoting privileged moments to their practice. They let this rare flower open out within them, and its scent can carry them away. Thenceforth, their life takes on its full meaning; they understand the need for letting this call grow and for fostering it in many ways. As they are cleaned and strengthened through regular practice, they do not any more see their life from the same perspective. Grace appears in them, and accelerates the process which leads them to the feet of the Master."

Babuji