Through these few lines, even if they are not directly addressed to him, my son can feel in his heart the effects of our love. We are connected on another level through this daily contact. By reading these lines, he can perceive the expression of our spirit surrounding him in many ways. We want to show him how much we are present by his side in his heavy task as the head of this Mission. It goes on its way, in the tribulations of this agitated world, which is not very conducive to spiritual practice. This need is nevertheless being felt more and more in the hearts in the search of an ideal that they cannot find in daily life.

"We are not a miracle solution to all their problems, but only a way that offers them access to another world, where possibilities are infinite provided that they are willing to discover them patiently. Man wants everything to speed up; this is the law of this world where results, profitability and effectiveness are the catchwords.

"These remarks are not directed at our brothers. Those who follow us trust us and do not ask us for a detailed assessment. They follow us in a very different universe where they learn how to be interiorized, how to understand the critical truths, without which they would feel their incarnation in this world to be without the least interest."
