Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, April 29, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

Not only does your enthusiasm touch us, but it moves us to clemency. You are like boisterous children whom one wants to forgive everything, touched by such innocent good will.

We know that you do not like criticisms. In these particular days, we will not offer any, we will only bless.

We are like benevolent and happy parents. We are prepared to be understanding of everything and to praise you to the skies.

We should in the future like to see all of you stronger and more capable of hearing what we have to say about your behaviour, with the sole purpose of helping you forge your personalities, a little like artists who strive to bring their creation as close to perfection as possible.

For now, let us leave aside this aspect of things and immerse ourselves totally in the rejoicing.

As far as you are concerned: meditate, meditate and love, all will be for the best.
