Each one of our brothers having taken part in this celebration has benefited from it. Our remarks concerning the future of the Mission are part of a vision of the future, which will happen in due time. It is true that our way will not be always isolated as it looks like today. In times to come, it will be established as a big unifying movement.

"Spiritual life will be organized, as habits will be changed. Tomorrow's man will not resemble any more today's one. Living conditions will be different, in keeping with climates and essentially suited to his then mentality as well as to a completely different life framework, which will be centred on higher values.

"Our way will serve as a model; its rules will be widely appreciated. As the human being would have become more lucid and less impressionable, he will be able to make choices according to his deepest aspirations, thus departing from his current sheep-like spirit. Some countries are constant examples in terms of manipulating people to satisfy their will for power. This situation has always existed; tomorrow another spirit will prevail, which will be based on a broader understanding of what men populating this Earth are."
