Service remains one of your priorities; we appreciate that. This concept is important; serving is an act of love that enlightens any spiritual process. Hence it takes on a broader meaning, which is important.

"The various stages of life have their own characteristics. It is good to differentiate them and provide in the age of reason an additional aspect: preparing for a research capable of transforming life. How could a life be led without this openness of mind and heart?

"We are working to this end: to make sure that a spiritual way is accessible to all and that it becomes as necessary as feeding one's physical body. The communion of souls moving towards liberation is a beautiful hope for humanity still immersed in a dreadful materialism.

"Working towards the construction of that world is a priority, even if it currently does not seem possible to achieve it. Such an achievement cannot be carried out quickly. The prevailing spirit of this world only focuses on speed, effectiveness, productivity and, of course, getting richer. Is it necessary to remind you that the latter is ephemeral? We do not think so, since those who will read us will have already understood where the essence is.

"These writings, which are meant to be articulated in a simple manner, do not include nice sentences that would be worth admiring as the perfection of writing. They only aim at touching the soul through their impression beyond the intellectual process. Our goal is to strike people's minds and to lead them towards understanding well the precariousness of life, which they actually find difficult to grasp."
