Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Monday, June 2, 2003 - 10:00 a.m.

Life in this world is only a succession of impressions, each more elusive than the one before. Positive and negative aspects merge in a succession of illusory snapshots. Only God is immutable; His powerful energy can never be altered. Unlike that which characterises this planet, His energy has all powers of creation and destruction. These two aspects are complementary, in terms of acting simultaneously and thwarting all possible speculations of human beings.

"What are men compared to this unimaginable greatness? Their sophisticated calculations are based only on misconceptions.

"Many of them believe they possess the truth, but they will not grasp it in this world where no one can guess it. Having an approximate idea of it would be a feat, which one had better not try because of the risk of getting lost in doubtful assumptions.

"This world is only characterised by illusion, which man finds it very difficult to admit as he is deeply imbued with his own certainties concerning the superiority of this planet and its inhabitants over the rest of creation.

"Our arguments will not make him change his mind, which we will not try to do. We have a different objective, geared towards what is essential for him, beyond the rules that govern the Earth where he has to spend a very temporary spell. May the divine light manage to touch him and let him be dazzled by such splendour."
