Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, May 2, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

The way, the Master, the goal – never lose sight of this objective.

In spirituality, everything always has to be started over, endlessly.

This is also the driving force of your life. The more you all advance, the more what is peripheral loses importance.

You secure your day-to-day material life and all your vital force is invested in spiritual work.

There comes a stage when this need keeps growing.

With time, you will appreciate the extent of its place in your daily life, and this realization will make you happy.

It is a food, a comfort, to unite with the inner Master, the Divine: is there anything more beautiful, more soothing for the heart, more exalting too?

How can these millions of souls who lack it do without it? Let us act, act in that direction, let us see that humanity goes forward through our individual work.

The souls advancing towards light are illuminating the world.

You do not work only for yourselves; there too the force of attraction comes in.

In this sense, you never advance for yourself alone – this should doubly encourage you.

You have your place, however modest it may be, in this grand divine game.
