Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Wednesday, June 25, 2003 - 10:00 a.m.

Love as a subtle and divine energy is lacking on this Earth. It is rare and does not belong to this world. Its manifestation is reserved for the chosen ones, as well as for those who are on their way, progressing selflessly, without fearing difficulties. Grace touches the hearts that call for it with ardour and faith; therefore, it does not shirk.

"The divine graces are also granted to man, unexpectedly, and generally in desperate plights. Here, merit is not the issue; grace chooses whom it wants in due time. In these crucial moments when demoralised man turns to the God of his heart, the latter does not remain insensitive. His creature, whoever he is, belongs to the Great Whole which He gives life to.

"These laws that are mysterious to human beings nevertheless govern their life in minute detail. They are unaware of them, which is good for they could not understand their subtleties, as they are only an infinitely small link in the vastness of creation. As such, each scrap of life is important and must be considered accordingly. Earthly hierarchies, titles, wealth and all these concepts specific to humanity are valueless here, hence the absolute necessity to respect life in whatever form. Pride is a plague in this world, as well as some inane events concerning the alleged superiority of the human race and certain individuals in particular, who think they are of a different nature than that of their fellow creatures. All of them are so small that they do not carry much weight in the hand of God. May all our brothers comprehend these remarks well."
