Friday, July 18, 2003 - 10:00 AM

You are not an unworthy daughter, nor is my son unworthy. You do not have to put yourself down like that. Each of you, in your own way, praise my divine heart so well, with so much of love, that you are the expression of my heart. Both your bonds with it transcend everything. My son has the rare humility of great men: that is one of the charming aspects of his personality, so rich humanly and spiritually. He satisfies my heart for many reasons.

"Love your Master, my daughter. You were lucky in this life to meet him, which is not the case for all. Our brother abhyasis should be aware of this privilege and redouble their efforts, by considering the opportunity given to them to enhance their spiritual career.

"All is grace! By recognizing that fact, the soul opens up to the divine light of the spirit. Each step forward, taken on the way, is important. Nothing should be neglected. Our way, with all that it offers, represents an invaluable asset for a soul in search of the Absolute. The catchwords are surrender and trust. They foster the work being carried out in the hearts. They iron out difficulties and clear the way to love and growing faith.

"Remain humble, trustful and loving. Your Master will not remain insensitive to the appeal of your heart. The way is long, and it is hard, and courage sometimes slackens, but assets of that nature are immutable when developed through unfailing devotion, in compliance with divine laws.

"A fervent heart calls for blessings; it therefore gets them, today particularly, my daughter. Your Master will feel through these remarks, all my love for him, which my heart is overflowing with. He is blessed by all of us who accompany him throughout his tour."

Babuji