Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, August 5, 2003 - 10:00 AM

My daughter,

"We have gone a long way together, which has led to this ease of communication. Concerning actions to be taken about these messages, they will be facilitated by modern means of communication that are used by our faithful aspirants in processing the messages. The entire system is well set up. The current technology is a great help to our way. The words of the Master, our teaching, as well as the news of the Mission are disseminated regularly, which develops bonds between our aspirants wherever they may be on Earth.

"Their loneliness has decreased and will keep decreasing thanks to the use of pictures, which our way should take advantage of developing, toward improving information on the movements of the Master and the Mission life in general. Men undergo nuisances resulting from the pollution of these systems, therefore, why not take the maximum advantage of what they can offer. The idea should be developed. My son will, without any doubt, think about it. Thanks to his intellectual curiosity, he is already up with the latest developments in this area. We will come back to this.

"Each time has its own characteristics, one must move with the times and adapt to what it offers. In this, our Mission is not lagging behind. Human beings who thirst for spirituality will grow. It will have to be quenched by providing them with this advanced technology, which man will increasingly be very fond of. It will be able to provide them with clear and accurate information about what we can offer to them.

"There is nothing to fear about going further into this system. The new era will shake up all idees recues [knowledge hitherto received]; we must plan and forge ahead."
