Saturday, August 30, 2003 - 10:00 AM

We have already made enough predictions about this poor planet. What it has been undergoing since such a long time is unprecedented in its history. It is not the only one to undergo these sufferings. As humans live in symbiosis with it, they necessarily suffer the related unpleasing repercussions, without being able to actually identify them. Humanity is doing very badly and this evil is growing. It often seems to lose its mind and in the present state of affairs, we can only note this dangerous evolution.

"In spite of that, many souls are waking up and searching their way, a bit lost in front of the profusion of all that is offered to them: many contradictory currents, different approaches to the issue, among which one has to make a choice and to adjust himself according to his own aspirations. Sahaj Marg is one of the options. It is somewhat different from all that currently exists; this is how our aspirants feel it. By practising with perseverance they necessarily get confirmation of that initial feeling. There are families of souls; they can be recognized within families, which they belong to. When time has come for them to go to the main thing, the researcher is guided to this end. He then understands that the moment has come for him to engage in a new phase of his evolution. He has no more time to lose. Humanity is getting into a new era where everything is at stake for it. Will it be able to be convinced of it and to act accordingly? We are all of us working to this end.

"May the period of enlightenment be established here below."

Babuji