Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fourth Revelation

Your heart is endearing, it surrenders like a child's heart. It is not demanding, it requests nothing. It loves, quite simply, without expecting specific graces.

"In our way, practising assiduously makes abhyasis malleable. The concept of surrender must guide them in everything, making them more receptive to the work which is achieved in them. They can then progress towards discovering their own treasures, highlighted by a sadhana well understood.

"His confidence in the Master must assert itself and love must develop in him accompanying this progress, which would be meaningless without it. While advancing in a spiritual quest, these aspects become obvious to the aspirant. Then, that would be for him the beginning of a fruitful and redeeming process. Perseverance leads him to new horizons: imperceptibly his inner transformation will change his conception of life. He will see life in all its truth. He will realise how ephemeral it is, which will encourage him to pursue fervently a way leading him beyond the precariousness of his Earthly life.

"Wisdom is acquired through experience; any well understood life is enlightening. The human being does experiments necessary for his evolution; he cannot escape it. Everybody is subjected to ordeals; it is the law of life. Sooner or later, each one must undergo one of these more or less repeated but necessary ordeals. By understanding this, a decisive step is taken on the path."
