

Friday, September 12, 2003 - 10:00 AM

You can love him; he is the son who meets all my wishes. You have discovered in him what he does not show easily. His sensitive and loving nature is revealed in your so special contacts where he can expose the depth of his love for the 'Divine guide' whom he refers to. He is a rare, complex and attractive being, as far as common mortals are concerned who have a presentiment of his divine nature elevated to the pinnacle of his earthly glory. He leaves a deep mark in their hearts, opening the door to the new era by working for the transformation of humanity.

'The need is felt desperately. Destabilized, anxious about what its future will be, it has reached a critical point for which a solution must be found. It will undergo the events already forecast, before being rebuilt in view of a new stage of its history, with basic elements so far ignored by the majority of men. People scouting around are working in order to help them get over the stage of ignorance prevailing sadly on this planet.

'The true mystic must put himself in phase with the realm of spirit and appreciate all its facilities, without limiting himself as many are still doing by hiding behind idiotic prejudices. His beliefs must open up more comprehensively to possible explorations in the beyond, while abandoning old tendencies sustained by a so-called rationalism, which is a refuge of ignoramuses. The time has come for men to broaden their views concerning a reality they want to ignore out of weakness and for fear of exploring."

Babuji