My son fulfils our wishes in every respect. He can show the many facets of a varied and resourceful personality. He conceals an immense love that appears in impulses expressed throughout this very special 'Correspondence,' full of information about his divine nature. His heart has an exquisite sensitivity concealed by his action as a businessman, which is necessary for a spiritual Master of his stature confronted with the development of the Sahaj Marg Mission worldwide, with all the resulting implications. It can only be built with the perceptiveness of an enlightened being like him and who has intensely a sense of realities.

"Our aspirants feel the beneficial effects of our way in their daily life, while they are also confronted with the many problems arising in life. They are involved in a demanding system resulting from the supposed progress of this civilization, and we must put at their disposal elements facilitating their spiritual process. The personal effort is elsewhere; it must find its place in a sometimes difficult context, mainly in certain regions of the world. A fervent heart manages to find its own way. We offer a possible solution to it, under conditions acceptable for all, whatever their social background. All is taking shape so that our way can take its real place in the world. It will meet the aspirations of many beings in search of a means to help them find in themselves a truth which they have a presentiment of."
